SBIRT (Screening, Brief Intervention and Referral to Treatment for Substance Use) is an evidence-based practice for assessing use of alcohol, tobacco, prescription medications, and illicit drugs. This training will provide healthcare social workers with the theory and current research regarding SBIRT as well as the opportunity to gain competency delivering SBIRT in medical practice settings. This course will also offer strategies for implementing SBIRT in practice settings while recognizing barriers to implementation.

This course is free for healthcare social workers.
